This sort of victim blaming is not unique to bullying cases. It can be seen when rape victims' sexual histories are dissected, when people living.

Blaming the victim is a phenomenon in which victims of crimes or tragedies are held accountable for what happened to them. Victim blaming.

Blaming the victim describes the attempt to escape responsibility by placing the blame for the crime or other abuse at the hands of the victim. We want the world to be fair: the good will be rewarded, the evil punished. As a result, we blame the victims of misfortune. Three experiments were conducted that tested and supported the hindsight effect as a cause of victim blaming. Subjects read detailed accounts that were.

The most common emotional responses to sexual harassment, battering, and rape are guilt, fear, powerlessness, shame, betrayal, anger, and denial. Guilt is.
