

Allan Kardec recommends prudence and knowledge of the subject as preparation necessary for the practice of mediumship. These are the tools needed to avoid both conscious and unconscious errors. In the Unseen World is a work that is indispensable to those who study mediumistic experiences. This is a treatise by Leon Denis on experimental Spiritism. Besides being a study on the laws that govern communication between the unseen and physical worlds, it presents numerous Spiritist cases researched by experts and the conclusions they reached. Denis concludes that "An ongoing, in-depth study of the unseen world" which is also the world of causes "will be an enormous fountainhead, an inexhaustible reservoir that will nourish both thought and life. Mediumship is its key."
