

This is by far the best home study audio course for Treatment of Imbalances in Traditional Chinese Medicine you can find. This lecture is designed for all students of Oriental Medicine Medical Schools, as well as for any one who is interested in Chinese Herbal Medicine. Traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) holds that a relatively stable, dynamic equilibrium exists between zang and fu (the solid and the hollow organs) and the rest of the human body. Disruption of these functions causes an imbalance in yin and yang. If equilibrium is not promptly restored through self-regulation, the body will contract diseases. This audio course provides efficient and energetic review of the major principles of treatments of the recognized patterns of imbalances in the human body.
